Vice President &
Chief Financial Officer,
Lockheed Martin
Space

David McReavy is the vice president and chief financial officer for Lockheed Martin Space. In this capacity, he is responsible for all Finance and Business Operations (F&BO) activities supporting the Space Business Area, including Program and Functional Finance, Contracts, Estimating, Accounting, Financial Planning & Analysis, and other controller functions supporting a business that delivers approximately $13B in annual revenue.

Additionally, David chairs the Space Business Transformation Council, which oversees Space 1LMX, organizational transformation, and affordability initiatives. David also serves on the United Launch Alliance (ULA) Board of Directors, where he is a member of the Board and co-chair of the Audit Committee.

Previously, David was the vice president and controller for Lockheed Martin Aeronautics Company. In this capacity, he was responsible for leading Aeronautics' controllership and financial planning for the approximately $30B business area, including Long Range Plan development, quarterly financial reviews, forward pricing rate proposals, functional business operations, information for investors, accounting, financial policies and compliance, financial transformation, and the finance leadership development programs.

Prior to that, David served as vice president of Programs and Functional Finance & Business Operations for Lockheed Martin Space with oversight of program execution and internal operations across all Lines of Business and major functional areas. He also served as director of Finance & Business Operations for the Military Space Line of Business and director of Financial Planning & Analysis (FP&A) for the Space Business Area.

David is a graduate of the Finance Leadership Academy and Finance Leadership Development Program. He received a Bachelor's degree in economics from Metropolitan State University and a Master of Business Administration from Duke University.
