Director,
Supply Chain

Sheryl Platte is the director of Supply Chain at United Launch Alliance (ULA), leading all aspects of ULA's supply chain execution including contract management, procurement strategies and government contract compliance. She has more than 20 years of experience leading procurement, logistics and materials management operations in the aerospace and automotive industries.

Prior to joining ULA, Platte was the senior leader for inventory optimization with The Boeing Company, most recently as senior manager for enterprise inventory optimization and planning in the company's Enterprise Strategy Development group. Over more than a decade at Boeing, she supported supply chain strategy for commercial airplanes, enterprise services business operations, materials management, services procurement and defense production program control. Platte began her career in the automotive industry, working for General Motors as well as supporting automotive accounts for third party logistics services.

Platte holds a Bachelor of Science degree in supply chain management from Michigan State University, a Master of Science degree in operations management from Kettering University and a Master of Business Administration degree from the University of Washington.
